Step 2: The "Your information and permissions" page will open in "Accounts Centre." Click on "Export your information."

The screenshot shows the Meta Accounts Centre interface. On the left is a sidebar with the following items: 'Meta' logo, 'Accounts Centre' (Manage your connected experiences and account settings across Meta technologies. Learn more), 'Profiles and personal details', 'Account settings', 'Password and security', 'Connected experiences', 'Your information and permissions' (highlighted with a dark background), 'Ad preferences', 'Meta Pay', 'Subscriptions', and 'Manage accounts'. The main content area is titled 'Your information and permissions' and includes a close button (X) in the top right. It contains a message: 'To download or transfer a copy of your information, go to Export your information.' Below this is a list of options: 'Export your information' (with a right arrow), 'Search history' (with a right arrow), 'Your activity off Meta technologies' (with a right arrow), 'App connections' (with a right arrow), 'Manage contacts' (with an Instagram icon and a right arrow), 'Manage cookies' (with a right arrow), and 'Identity confirmation' (with a Facebook icon and a right arrow). A red arrow points from the right side of the image to the 'Export your information' option. At the bottom of the main content area, there is a link: 'View or export your information and activity on our apps.' and a footer note: 'Control what information Meta technologies can use to influence your experiences.'
